For the prevention and cure of
BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended

HAHN's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

RAN AWAY from Peter Graham, living near Middleburg, Loudoun county, Va. on the night of the 25th of March last, a very likely Negro girl, named ANN, purchased of Wm. Noland, living at Aldie, Loudoun county, whose family she was raised in. She is of a yellow complexion, round faced, thick lips, with large staring eyes, and rather delicate featured for a slave;—small feet, a tolerable ready speech, and mild with it; about 18 years of age, middle size, and very well made; rather thick, about 5 feet high from appearance. She had on when she went away a dress of coating cloth, made in a coat and jacket, with skirts of a brown snuff color. I have reason to believe she is in or near Philadelphia or New-York. I will give fifty dollars reward if taken in Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William, or Fairfax counties, or the District of Columbia, if taken in any other county or state, and secured in any jail, so that I obtain information and get her, I will give one hundred dollars, and all reasonable charges paid in either case, if brought home.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1818.

Original Miscellany.

To the Editor of the Alexandria Gazette.

SIR,

In an age teeming with publications of almost every sort from female pens, it is a matter of much surprise to me that no one has thought it an object worthy her time and genius to publish her lucubrations on a subject that must be interesting to all, and instructive to many of her sex. When the road to female distinction is crowded with competitors, it seems to me a strange want of general benevolence in those of much experience, not to make public the innocent arts by which they attain the summit of felicity, and grasp the object of general ambition.

I am a young creature, Mr. Editor, just from the country, and though I wondered much at the emotions I experienced when I contrasted the brilliance and gaiety of the ball room—the busy and hurried appearance of those I met in the streets, with the desolate stillness of the evening in the country, and the mute imploring solicitude of the cattle as they assembled around my father's barn-yard at the hour of night-fall; yet, I confess to you, I have seen nothing in town that so much astonished me as the art of some young ladies, (in personal attractions seeming not much to surpass ladies in general) who can, in a few days' residence, be surrounded with adoring crowds; who can discard, as we call it in the country, many lovers in a week, without diminishing perceptibly the admiring, the adoring company of their devotees. This seemed to me, Mr. Editor, so charming an art—an art carrying with its possession so rare and exquisite a happiness, that I could not help writing home to my mother a particular description of several young ladies, and asking her, as I always do when I want to know the secret ways of the world, or the intricate windings of the human heart, how I might obtain so inestimable a science. For surely a science it must be, as those young ladies seem not to have those qualities which, in the country, cause the men to bow down and adore us. Now, sir, what do you think she said? I really am so flurried when I think of her letter that I cannot compose myself sufficiently to dictate any thing in my own way; and, therefore, I hope she will excuse me for sending you an extract, especially as I have a great desire to find that my mother has been mistaken in her explication of the appearances which so much surprised me.

"You must not believe," said my mother in concluding her letter, "in mere appearances; they are not to be relied on, although much of what excites your wonder arises often from the dextrous management, and sometimes the skilful creation of them. The world is governed by appearances, my love, and you are not singular in being deceived by them. The great art of human life consists in seizing their advantages when they accidentally arise, and bringing them into existence, when our situation will not permit them naturally to have birth. But, to be more particular, the ladies of whom you speak enjoy but a very short lived and unsubstantial happiness. When they have sense they feel they are not esteemed. If they have neither wit nor beauty you must know they cannot be loved.—Some of those whom you have described are, no doubt, my Emily, every way deserving the attentions they so readily and universally attract. I cannot doubt but that they are truly loved and highly esteemed; but it is not for want of modesty or delicacy, or for a bold and unreserved carriage. When you observe a young lady return with interest the animated glance of love, whether to a handsome or an awkward young fellow, depend upon it she neither loves nor is chastly loved. Such an one may be surrounded for a time by many men, both of sense and fortune; and though, by the management I before spoke of, she may have the reputation of their addresses, yet it will avail her nothing when the world shall see her united to one of its most insignificant figures. The honor of discarding those who never addressed them, is frequently acquired by ladies who understand the use of the inviolable secrecy of instant and unsolicited communication, and the proper exhibition of a reluctance to hear what no one has any intention of communicating. Avoid those ladies, my dear, who publish their own conquests; they are far from being objects of imitation, and much below the envy of a modest girl. If they say truth, they manifest great indelicacy; but if they only speak what is apparently true, they exhibit a disposition infinitely worse."

Now, sir, I have the greatest reliance upon my mother's good sense and discernment; yet I wish very sincerely that she may be mistaken, and that some lady, experienced in the divine art of acquiring lovers, by a treatise upon the subject, would undeceive my mother and instruct me; and show that the thing is to be done without much beauty or wit, and without a sacrifice of modesty, delicacy or truth.

Your obedient servant,
E. RUSTIC

CAMERA OBSCURA.

We invite public attention to this very interesting exhibition, which stands at the principal corners of our streets. The following description, from the N. York Chronicle, is so much better than any thing we can say on the subject, that we readily give it a place:

CAMERA OBSCURA.

The ingenious proprietor of this elegant machine, has made such improvements in its construction, that we feel warranted in asserting it to be unrivalled. It will contain ten or twelve persons, (besides the exhibitor) who are arranged round a circular table which stands in the centre. On the surface of this table appears every external object, animate and inanimate, in their just proportions, hues, and attitudes; reduced in size, and softened in complexion. Every sign-board can be easily read, and the countenances of the passing citizens as readily recognized by the wondering spectator, as if he was before them, in open day-light, instead of being shut up in total darkness in this little magical temple. Horses, carriages, men, women, and children—birds, cats, and dogs, are seen moving over the table. Among the numerous advantages attending such a peep at the busy world through "the loop-holes of retreat," as Cowper says, we will mention the following—premising, however, that our quotation is unfortunate, for there is neither loop holes nor any other kind of opening to look through. A person can here see every body, without being seen himself. Here a lover may unobserved watch the motions of his mistress; or a lady may gaze upon her lover without the least violence to her delicacy. Let the poor persecuted debtor pop in here, and laugh in the face of the unfeeling constable, who like a hound at fault, will soon take a wrong scent, and thus be eluded. Here those curious females who spend half their time in gazing from a second story window at the passengers below, can gratify their curiosity without exposing their charms to the rude encounter of every vulgar eye. Here the members of a certain dignified body can watch over the movements of their quadruped scavengers, without the danger of being thrown into the gutter or bespattered with mud, by these promoters of cleanliness. In short, all the above advantages, and hundreds more not enumerated, can be obtained and enjoyed, by entering Mr. Banton's Chinese Temple; and the price of admittance is only 25 cents. Let ingenuity be encouraged, in whatever shape it appears; but especially when new light is thrown upon a very dark subject, as is the case with the Camera Obscura. Painters and Draftsmen, should not neglect the present opportunity on any consideration—an opportunity of taking lessons from Nature, and of learning to imitate the finest touches of her pencil.

New-York, Feb. 9.

Captain Adams, of the ship Elizabeth, who arrived yesterday from St. Ubes, brings despatches from Mr. Erving, our minister at Madrid, to the secretary of state, which were forwarded by this morning's mail.

The following document was handed to captain Adams, with a request to have it published:

St. Ubes, Dec. 11, 1817.

On board the American ship Constitution, of Norfolk, Va. Seaward master, riding quarantine, Abraham Christian, who had been in a mutinous state since the ship left London, where he was shipped, came on deck while the captain and officers were below at dinner, and threw fire about the deck, some of which fell among dry shavings, where the carpenter had been dressing a spar, and among other combustibles. The cook gave the alarm of fire. The captain, on calling him to an account, received blows on his head. A guard was called, and Abraham Christian was carried on shore by them.

ALEXANDRIA:
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1818.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Friday, February 13, 1818.

MR. MEADE.

The public will rejoice to hear that the affair of Mr. Meade and his imprisonment at Cadiz was brought up yesterday in the House of Representatives by Mr. Sergeant, in a motion that the whole affair, together with the resolution proposed by Mr. Trimble some days before and the several documents that had been laid before the house, should be referred to a select committee, in order that the facts should be examined into and reported to the house. The subject, he said, was of the utmost importance, and it was the duty of the house to proceed in it with cautious deliberation, but with firmness. Mr. Trimble expressed his concurrence, and the motion was granted.

Colonel Johnson's string of resolutions, which had been for some time before the house, then came in turn, as the order of the day. The house resolved itself into a committee upon them, and they were all negatived, with the exception of that respecting an additional national armory on the western waters, which lies over, and that which goes to the repeal of the law of 1812, annexing pay and emoluments to brevet rank in the army. The rejection of these resolutions gives a decisive blow to the great military fabric, the plan of which, when it first appeared in outline, occasioned high hopes to all our militarians, and deep regret to those of a different description. With all my dislike to a standing army, I think there were some parts of Mr. Johnson's resolutions founded in good sense and sound policy.

From the New-York Daily Advertiser.

The proceedings in Congress during the present session, relative to the officers and soldiers of the war of independence, and on the claim of General St. Clair, though mortifying to the feelings of those high minded persons, whose situation and services have been the subject of discussion, may still be accounted for upon common and well known principles of human nature. It is now thirty five years since the war of Independence was closed by the treaty of peace by which that Independence was acknowledged; and it is more than forty years since the solemn act of declaring the then colonies free and independent states took place. Since the occurrence of these two great events, a large part of the present active generation of men have been born. Among the members of the national legislature, probably a considerable proportion have no other knowledge of these events, than what they have derived from history or tradition. If this is the fact, it could not have been expected that they should be able to realize the extent, the value, or the hazard, of the services of those who conducted the civil and military affairs of the country, during that dark and momentous period. Indeed it requires no small effort of mind, and that of a mind warmed with feelings of a pure and elevated character, to form a true estimate of the condition, the fortitude and the risque, which attended the conduct of that illustrious body, who put their signatures to the Declaration of Independence, or of that not less illustrious body who composed the army. Independence was declared early in the contest, when the colonies were without resources for carrying on the war—when the parent country was strong rich, and powerful, and apparently able to crush them—when all the means of maintaining hostilities—men, money, officers, military stores and arms, were almost to be created—and when, in the event of a failure in the struggle, any distinguished actor in the controversy was liable to be tried, and executed as a traitor. And after that step had been taken, scenes scarcely less interesting succeeded, in which every appearance was against us, and the hearts of many of the most ardent friends to the country and its cause were ready to sink in despair. Little do these young politicians know of the alternations of hope and fear—of enthusiasm and despondency, which succeeded each other during the fearful period of 1779, 1780 and 1781—when the ranks of the army were from time to time so reduced as to present to the eye of its GREAT COMMANDER a mere skeleton of what it ought to have been—of that period during which the enemy, in addition to the occupation of this city throughout almost the whole period of the war, at one time and another, had possession of Philadelphia, Charleston and Savannah, and had nearly overrun the whole of the southern states—when the army were miserably fed, worse clad, and still worse paid, because the currency of the country had degenerated into perfect trash. Without any feeling sense of these things, how can it be expected, that men who only know them "by the hearing of the ear," can truly and justly appreciate the services of those who struggled through them with every degree of personal suffering and hazard.

It is in the nature of man, as well as of things, that subjects of this sort should make a much fainter impression upon the minds of those who have been born since the events took place—who when they first opened their eyes on the light, found their country in possession of that Independence which had been by their fathers with such difficulty and danger achieved; and who personally know nothing either of the colonial state, or of the miseries which attended the transition of the colonies from that state to Freedom and Independence. Were this not the case, it would be impossible for even the most youthful members of Congress to feel a cold indifference to the present character or condition of the officers and soldiers of the war of Independence. Feeling themselves and all their friends, as well as the whole nation, indebted to them, under providence, for all the national blessings which they enjoy, they would not waste a large portion of a session in cold-blooded discussion, in unfeeling debate, calculating with mercantile nicety the exact amount of each individual's merit in the controversy, and postponing a decision until the tomb had lessened even the small number that remained when the session commenced.

If national gratitude was ever due to any of its benefactors, it is most richly due to these persons. It ought to be measured to them by a liberal hand—in such degree, that the short remainder of their path to the grave may be lighted and cheered by the certainty of comfortable competence, as well as of security against want.

From the United States Gazette.

In the subjoined pathetic and irrefutable statement of facts, by a most disinterested witness and venerable minister of truth, an appeal is made to the justice of government, which we are well assured the grateful and united wish of the American people much desires to see carried into immediate and full effect—for if such sympathy can be excited in the breast of a virtuous foreigner towards the asserters of our national freedom, what ought to be the feeling and gratitude of the government and people who owe the seats they occupy and the happiness they enjoy to the courage and fidelity of these long neglected men—a further protraction of their claim to this equitable settlement of the half pay for life, would fix indelible reproach on the American name and nation.

But such is not the wish of the people—it cannot, therefore, be the policy of the government to protract a claim so just and necessary in all its relations.

REMARKS ON THE
Petition to Congress by the surviving officers of the Revolutionary Army.

When the national legislature deliberates on very important objects, it is the duty of individuals to present their opinions with due respect; the more so, because if well founded, they are those of many thousand good and intelligent citizens, that have not leisure or ability for political writing. In the present case, which relates to matters forty years ago, some of great moment can be duly estimated only by persons who witnessed the calamities of those times. Residing, as Swedish missionary, during the whole war, in New-Jersey, not far from Philadelphia, sharing in a great measure the public sufferings, and by sympathy the distress of others, I had both opportunity and inclination for attentive observation.

The request of the officers is very equitable. Refusal of it would impair the honor of the United States; and may endanger their future safety. The first will appear by the following statement—In countries that have standing armies, the officers enjoy their salaries, more or less, before war, often many years, and with ease—they also have certain rewards after it by half pay or pensions.—Our officers had no such advantages.—They left profitable employments or prospects of future comfortable support from various professions. They had no assurance of compensation on the return of peace, and would get nothing if the contest, which was very dubious, should prove unfortunate.—The military service was attended with uncommon sufferings by the depreciation of the continental money, which began very soon, and increased rapidly to an amazing degree. This occasioned many wants—provisions were scarce in some parts of the country, and in those that had a sufficiency, many sold reluctantly for the bad money. Clothing became incredibly dear, as not enough was made at home and little imported. Many officers paid a whole year's allowance for a single suit.—The letters of General Washington to Congress describe these wants as very distressing. In the winter of 1778 he wrote from the Camp at Valley Forge—"This is the second time in the present year that we have been upon the verge of dissolution for want of provisions. To see men without clothes to cover their nakedness, without blankets to lie on, without shoes (so that their marches might be traced by the blood from their feet) and almost as often without a house or hut to cover them, and submitting to it without murmur, is a mark of patience and obedience, which in my opinion, can scarce be paralleled." In the Southern States the sultry heat caused a great deal of sickness and mortality. Instances of hunger were frequent there.—A gentleman who was a major in the army, gave me the following fact: "On the expedition in East Florida in the year 1778, four Captains of the first South Carolina Regiment sat down to a plate of rice without salt which had been taken from the hospital tent, and eat it with one spoon to make an equal division of it." He also related that in Charleston, 1786, he paid six hundred dollars, his annual salary, for a pair of boots:—Congress having failed in all attempts to hold up the paper money, was obliged in 1780 to sanction by law, the depreciation at the rate of 40 paper for one in silver; but it was then current at sixty or seventy; rose next year to 150, speedily to some hundreds, and died by a natural death that all discerning persons had long foreseen. Congress appreciating the merit of the officers and anxious to retain them in the service, promised by resolves, in 1779-80 81, half pay for life from the time of their reduction; and in March 1782, instead of this reward, offered to those that should continue to the end of the war, five years full pay, either in money, or in securities on interest at six per cent annually, as congress should find most convenient—leaving the choice to the officers, not individually but lines of the several states. Good motives caused this alteration, but it was not beneficial to the younger and middle aged officers, who might probably live a long time; and their consent was, therefore, not by free choice. When peace returned, Congress had no money, and no power of taxation. Supplies from the states could not be obtained, because their own finances were in a bad condition, and the people generally, was either unable or unwilling to raise money. The full pay of five years was, therefore, impossible—and acceptance of the securities became necessary. The value of these was from the first below the nominal, and fell continually, because no funds could be procured for paying the interests. They became like lottery tickets, as the weakness of the federal government portended its final dissolution. Many of the officers were indigent, having consumed their own means in the service, or contracted heavy debts. Several had no trades for support. Some would commence business, but not without money. They were from these causes compelled to sell their securities at a low rate, commonly for an eighth part of the nominal value, and even less.—Thus brave defenders of their country lost a reward earnt by tedious and bitter sufferings. They now request, not a full, but partial compensation—proposing to refund the whole nominal amount of the securities, and receiving in lieu thereof the arrearages of half pay, without interest, in money, or government securities, with six per cent. yearly interest, and continuance of half pay for the remainder of their lives. By the first condition they return many times more than they got from the sale of those depreciated securities; and by the second they resign a great amount of interest.—This compromise is, therefore, very equitable.

Let us now consider the granting of the request as important for the honor and future safety of the United States. Satisfaction being due cannot be a charitable gift. Distinction between richer or poorer is therefore improper, nor could be made with accuracy. Sympathy doth, however, aid the claim of justice in this case: The relief comes very late, in the evening of life, to some on the brink of the grave! The government of the United States is a guardian of the national honor, which must be unblemished, respected at home and abroad. The critical eyes of Europe observe this new empire. Let no nation say, "we appreciate our defenders better than the American republic."

Principles of justice and honor are the solid pillars of empires, securing the respectful affection of citizens, attaching friendly nations, and overawing the hostile. A good and wise nation will never provoke war, but always be prepared for defence. The United States have no assurance of permanent peace. Disregard of men that have done and suffered so much for their independence and prosperity, may in future danger be severely felt; but honorable treatment of them will secure a host of other brave defenders, who know that in life and in death they will be remembered by a grateful country.

Hassan,	Stewart
Slave,	E. Emberton
Leader of Blue Beard's party,	Pepin
Leader of Selim's party,	Parker
Fatima,	Miss Trajetta
Irene,	Mrs. Parker
Beda,	Monier

The following is a description of some of the most particular Scenes, Songs, Chorusses, Processions, &c.

Act I, Scene 1st.

A grand perspective view of the Mountains of Switzerland.

In the fore ground IBRAHIM'S COTTAGE. Selim enters, Fatima appears at the cottage window, and they sing the celebrated Duet of "Twilight glimmers on the deep." The procession of Blue Beard and all his train over the Mountains on Horseback. Blue Beard himself elegantly mounted on his HANOVERIAN CHARGER. Dialogue and Chorus, "See the Bashaw appears." Dialogue. The Procession returns—Fatima and Irene added to the train, and seated in a beautiful palanquin, carried by four Africans dressed in the costume of the country.

Scene 2d. An Apartment in Blue Beard's Castle. Duett. Shakabac and Beda, "Tick-a-Tack."

Act II. Scene 1st. A CUT WOOD. All the Horses discovered lying down, as in ambush—their leaders across their bodies asleep in different parts of the stage. They are aroused from their slumbers by the shrill sound of the trumpet, at which noise they suddenly rise. The HORSES, as if inspired with the bravery of their leaders, throw themselves into a variety of positions, which has heretofore astonished every beholder. Selim enters—the Horses marshal themselves into a line. Chorus, "Rub-a-Dub," and the troops exit to the rescue of Fatima.

Scene 3d. Hall in the Castle. Song, "Tambourine Roundelay," by Mrs. Parker. Song, "Conjugal Strife," by Mr. Entwisle. Song, "Whilst pensive I tho't on my Love," Miss Trajetta.

Scene 4th. The BLUE ENCHANTED CHAMBER, ELEGANTLY DECORATED. Duet, "No one near." Miss Trajetta and Mrs. Parker. The curiosity of Irene is instilled by her into Fatima, and they apply the key to the fatal chamber door. The interior of the apartment opens and discovers a SEPULCHRAL BUILDING—in the centre of which is a SKELETON SEATED ON A TOMB, with a dart in his hand—and over his head, in characters of blood, is written, The punishment of Curiosity.

Act III. Scene 1. A TURRET in the eastern part of Blue Beard's castle, in which Fatima is confined. Quartetto—Mr. Entwisle, Mr. Hutton, Miss Trajetta and Mrs. Parker—"Look from the turret, sister, down."

Scene Last—presents a superb (exterior) view of BLUE BEARD'S CASTLE. On the east side, A DRAW-BRIDGE; on the west, a GRATING, or PORTCULLIS, leading into the castle. Other parts of the Fortress seen in the perspective.

Storming of the Castle by Cavalry and Infantry.

Selim's party is about to cross the draw bridge, when it is suddenly hoisted by Blue Beard's soldiery. They retire and make an effort to force the Portcullis, in which they succeed; and the HORSES, KNEELING, enter into the castle. A General Combat, horse and foot. One of Selim's party heroically mounts the draw bridge, which before impeded their efforts, and gallantly cuts it down, which gives an opportunity for his company to pass, and the horses to ascend. In the course of the bustle, are several SINGLE COMBATS between the knights on Horse and Foot—the various DEATHS OF THE HORSES, and the final OVERTHROW OF BLUE BEARD.

PRECEDING THE PLAY,
Will be acted the celebrated comedy of

THE LIAR.

After which, a new Scotch Ballet, got up under the immediate direction of Mr. Parker, called

DONALD & PATIE.

Land for Sale.

THE Subscriber offers for sale, about 2000 acres of land in Fairfax county, not more than from seven to nine miles from Alexandria. The property is well watered, has a sufficiency of wood, and (judging from the condition of small and well cultivated farms that adjoin it,) it is highly susceptible of improvement.—It is at present divided into tenements, of from one to two hundred acres, each provided with a dwelling house, out houses, a garden and orchard; and might, of course, be laid off into four or five very compact farms. The principal object of the subscriber, being the introduction of a good system of husbandry into his neighbourhood, he will sell on very moderate terms, give a long credit on the whole amount of the purchase money, and require no other interest, than what the present rent of the land pays, being about 8 per cent. on its estimated value.

Valuable Land for Sale.

THE subscriber wishes to sell two valuable Tracts of Land—one situated in the upper part of Fairfax county, adjoining the lands of Samuel G. Griffith, and bounded north by the Potomac river, containing 700 acres, about one half in wood; of the cleared land a considerable proportion is first river bottom, equal in fertility to any in Virginia: the upland is well situated for farming and of a good quality. There is also a mill seat on the Tract of considerable value. This farm is worth the attention of any person wishing to engage in the farming business, as it certainly is not exceeded by any in the county (perhaps state) as a farm of profit, and may be had on reasonable terms. Mr. John Bicksler, who resides near the land, will shew it, and Mr. Wm. M'Carty of Loudoun county, or Mr. John W. Bronaugh of Georgetown, D. C. will make known the terms. If this Tract is not disposed of before the 2nd of MARCH, it will then be exposed to PUBLIC SALE, at Wiley's Tavern, on the road leading from Alexandria to Leesburg.

The other Tract contains 1000 acres, and is the upper and most valuable part of the Tract I live on. It is situated ten miles below Alexandria, and bounded N. by Accotink creek. This Tract will be divided to suit purchasers, if found necessary. Persons wishing to purchase will apply to the subscriber living at Cedar Grove, who will shew the land and make known the terms.

James Kennedy & Son,

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from LEE's MEDICINE STORE, No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Teres or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitine or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tænia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fœtid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended

HAHN's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficatious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir,

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, asthmas, sore throats, catarrhs, and approaching consumptions.—To parents who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative,

Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of

Nervous Disorders	Violent cramps in
Consumptions	the stomach and
Lowness of spirits	back
Loss of appetite	Indigestion
Impurity of b'ood	Melancholy
Hysteric'l affection	Gout in the stomach
Inward weaknesses	Pains in the limbs
and debility	Relaxations, etc.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.

A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic rheumatism, gout, rheumatic gout, palsy, lumbago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain in the face and neck, etc. etc.

Lee's Ointment for the Itch.

Warranted an infallible remedy at one application, may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old, not containing a particle of mercury or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and not accompanied with that tormenting smart which attends the application of other remedies.

Hahn's true & genuine German Corn Plaister.

An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing them root and branch, without giving any pain.

The Genuine Persian Lotion,

So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe, is an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals, the basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes of the face and skin, freckles, pimples, inflamatory redness, scurfs, tetters, ringworms, sunburns, prickly heat, &c.

Hahn's genuine Eye Water,

A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of natural weakness or of accident.

Tooth Ache Drops.

The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops

For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.
